Meet Christos

Christos is the firm's Co-Managing Partner and Chief Operating Officer, and has been a member of the firm's senior management team since 2010. He works with the management team to design and oversee the firm's strategic growth and development plans. Christos is responsible for the planning and implementation of the firm's administration, operations, technology, human resources, and practice management. He also develops and oversees all financial, administrative, regulatory compliance protocols, and processing operations. Under Christos' leadership as Chief Operating Officer, Ligris has emerged as one of the largest transactional real estate law firms and title agency operations in New England. Christos lives in Boston, not far from his hometown of Somerville, and speaks fluent Greek.

Outside the Office

If the weather cooperates, you will find Christos golfing in the spring, summer, and fall. During the winter months, he likes to spend his weekends skiing. Otherwise, he enjoys going to the movies and sporting events, and trying new restaurants.

Background

Before joining Ligris, Christos was Regional Vice President at one of the country's largest banks overseeing one of its mortgage divisions on the West Coast and Southwestern territories. As a seasoned and experienced lending manager, Christos has extensive experience in lending workflow production, pipeline management, and oversight of policy and regulatory compliance.
