Meet Joe

Joe's practice primarily focuses on representing individuals and families with purchasing, financing, and selling real estate for residential, commercial, and investment purposes. He also works closely with Trust and Estate Groups and Private Client Groups of large law firms as well as multiple family offices in connection with their clients' real estate needs.

Outside the Office

Joe lives in Boston and enjoys fitness, trying new restaurants, and traveling with family and friends. In college, he spent a trimester studying in Toulouse, France, and developed a love for the language. Although his French is very rusty, Joe enjoys traveling to French speaking countries whenever possible.

Background

Beginning his career at a large international law firm, Joe represented high net worth clients in their acquisitions, financings, and sales of real estate. He represented many of the managing directors of the firm's corporate clients in their personal real estate matters. He also worked closely with the firm's Trust and Estate Group/Private Client Group in supporting their client's real estate projects. Joe was later a partner at a boutique real estate law firm in Boston where he continued his representation of longstanding as well as new clients.

Why Joe?

The opportunity to join an industry leader that is forward-thinking and committed to exceptional service.

Learn from Joe

Joe enjoys mentoring young lawyers in real estate matters. He also particularly enjoys his relationship with families that have been longstanding clients and advising the next generation with respect to real estate matters.
